PROFILE

An Indian game programmer and designer now employed with Godspeed games. Playing games has always been a passion of mine, and my curiosity about "how these games are developed?" led me to the field of game creation, where I learned about numerous aspects of game design and production. When I'm not programming, I like to learn new things, take on new challenges, and spend extra time refining my skills to ensure that the creative vision is realized to the best of my ability, or I spend time with my family.
